

Job-Hunting at AccountingCrossing Can Be Tax-Deductible

December 10, 2007

Pasadena, CA — When users sign up for AccountingCrossing's services, users can not only peruse the thousands of accounting jobs posted on our dynamic job board, but they may also be able to write off their monthly subscription fees of $29.95 as tax-deductible.

According to the IRS, job-hunters can write off fees if they look for a new job during their present occupation. So, are you unhappy at your current accounting firm? Are you looking for a new accounting job? Then sign up today with AccountingCrossing.com, and write off your expenditures as tax-deductible.

"Those seeking new accounting jobs now have no excuse not to sign up for AccountingCrossing.com," says CEO A. Harrison Barnes. "With the possibility to write off their monthly fee, viewers can search with greater ease."

And when you sign-up for AccountingCrossing.com, your monthly fee will not only allow you to view jobs on AccountingCrossing, but it will also allow you to view jobs on all EmploymentCrossing websites (excluding LawCrossing). Get the most bang for your buck when, for just $29.95 a month, you'll be able to view over 455,000 jobs at once!

"The mission of EmploymentCrossing is simple: to gather and share with the world all current and active job listings. How have we begun to accomplish this crucial mission? By dividing and conquering. We have targeted more than 30 key industries and have set out to master each job market by mining and posting all relevant jobs from employer career web pages, newspapers, job boards, and other online resources. In addition, we do not charge employers to post jobs, a unique approach that encourages ever more job diversity on our sites," EmploymentCrossing's website says.

The inspiration behind it all comes from the development and success of LawCrossing, which features the largest collection of active legal jobs in the world, including more than 10,000 positions at top law firms, corporations, public interest organizations, and government offices throughout the U.S.

Since its launch in July 2003, LawCrossing has become the world's largest legal-career-placement website. The site is a brainchild of CEO A. Harrison Barnes, who, in 2000, founded Juriscape, the hugely successful parent company. LawCrossing's team of more than 300 staff members monitors the hiring needs of more than 250,000 legal employers throughout the U.S. and worldwide. LawCrossing counts tens of thousands of law students, attorneys, and legal staff professionals as members.
