AdvertisingCrossing Rapidly Expands, Adding Hundreds of New Jobs Every Week

February 13, 2008

Pasadena, CA — AdvertisingCrossing, which has now been active for a year, is making its mark in the advertising business as the fastest-growing job board around. With approximately 1,000 jobs added in the last week, the site is quickly becoming one of the prime resources for its industry.

“AdvertisingCrossing is just one of many of our niche industry job boards, and it’s making leaps and bounds all the time. We want users to have access to all the advertising jobs that others never see, and we’re getting closer and closer to achieving that each day,” said CEO A. Harrison Barnes.

AdvertisingCrossing charges its users a monthly fee of $29.95 to access its job listings. This fee pays for its team of researchers, programmers, and other staff members who hunt down and post every single advertising job they can on a daily basis. It also allows members to gain access to the other 30-plus industry-specific Crossing job boards. A list of the entire collection of Crossing websites can be viewed at EmploymentCrossing. A free, seven-day trial of the service is also available.

Students are able to access AdvertisingCrossing’s supply of jobs for free while they are in school. This means that students can get a heads-up on all relevant internships and jobs as they near graduation without spending a dime on the service. In addition to its constant efforts to expand the resources and number of jobs on the site, AdvertisingCrossing features weekly stories on advertising-related news and trends as well as profiles of the most groundbreaking professionals in the industry.
