

BusinessAnalystCrossing Has the Largest Database of Business Analyst Jobs

March 13, 2008

Pasadena, CA — BusinessAnalystCrossing (www.businessanalystcrossing.com), the world's top source of business analyst job listings, can assist business analyst professionals with their employment needs.

BusinessAnalystCrossing posts thousands of business analyst jobs daily and provides articles focusing on trends and discussion topics in the business analyst arena. It enables employers to post job listings at no charge, which in turn increases the number of jobs listed. The website also continuously monitors the hiring needs of thousands of employers, including virtually every firm, company, government office, and organization in the United States that associates with business analyst professionals.

CEO Harrison Barnes states, "I am excited to bring you a quality job database that will meet all your business analyst job needs. Our staff works hard for you so that you can reach your career aspirations successfully."

The success of BusinessAnalystCrossing comes from its employees' constant monitoring of thousands of websites. Furthermore, its staff uses advanced technology that scours the Internet for business analyst jobs that would be of interest to its members. Updates are made daily by BusinessAnalystCrossing's staff.

"We have invested millions into bringing BusinessAnalystCrossing.com to you, and it is evident. We have created a site that is made to work especially for you and your needs, in the most diligent way possible," says Barnes.

BusinessAnalystCrossing is an online job-search site that aims to feature every single business analyst opening, as well as industry-specific articles that will keep those in the business analyst field knowledgeable about the current market. The site is a place where business analyst professionals can obtain solutions to all of their career needs.

BusinessAnalystCrossing, which is part of EmploymentScape, has a staff dedicated to monitoring the business analyst industry nationwide and locating relevant, currently available jobs for its members.
