THE LARGEST COLLECTION OF CUSTOMER SERVICE JOBS ON EARTH

CustomerServiceCrossing Has Largest Database of Customer Service Jobs

January 18, 2008

PASADENA, CA—A newer website called CustomerServiceCrossing.com featuring the largest database of sales jobs in the world will help you with your customer service employment goals.

CustomerServiceCrossing.com posts thousands of customer service jobs daily and provides articles about news and discussion topics in the customer service sector. Its services are offered for free to employers, which, in turn, increases the number of jobs posted. This website will continuously monitor the hiring needs of thousands of employers, including every firm, company, government office, and organization in the United States dealing with customer service.

CEO Harrison Barnes states, "I am proud to announce that we have created a place to meet your customer service job needs. We work hard for you so that you can achieve your career goals." The success of CustomerServiceCrossing comes from its employees' constant monitoring of thousands of websites each day and from its advanced technology that scours the Internet for customer service jobs that would be of interest to its members. Updates are made daily by our employees.

"We have invested millions into creating the database for CustomerServiceCrossing.com, and it shows. We have a site that is very unique and efficient," says Barnes.

CustomerServiceCrossing is an online job board featuring every single customer service opening, as well as informative industry articles. It is your one-stop site for all things customer service-related. CustomerServiceCrossing has a full staff dedicated to monitoring the customer service market and locating customer service positions across the country.
