THE LARGEST COLLECTION OF DESIGN JOBS ON EARTH

DesigningCrossing Membership Is Now Tax Deductible

February 1, 2008

Pasadena, CA—DesigningCrossing has always provided job seekers with a way to meet their job search needs, and now the site can also help its members with their taxes! DesigningCrossing members can now qualify to write off their job-seeking fees this tax season.

Searching for a job is difficult enough, so be sure to take advantage of this great opportunity! According to the 2006 Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Publication 529 regarding job-search expenses, “You can deduct certain expenses you have in looking for a job in your present occupation, even if you do not get a new job.”

The deductible expenses can vary, but they may include an assortment of things such as employment and outplacement agency fees, costs from putting together and mailing resumes to possible employers, and job-seeking travel and transportation fees.

“This is a great thing for candidates searching for jobs. I hope job seekers become aware of this opportunity,” said CEO A. Harrison Barnes. “It’s a good piece of information to know and use.”

Having a membership in DesigningCrossing allows members access to our large job board, which is updated daily. DesigningCrossing’s monthly fee is as low as $29.95. This low fee provides our members with access to designing jobs from around the country. What’s more, DesigningCrossing includes articles that focus specifically on the design industry, allowing people searching for jobs to stay updated on the latest issues in the design sector.
