PRCrossing Features the Nation's Premier Collection of Active Public Relations Jobs

August 27, 2007

Pasadena, CA,—Thanks to PRCrossing.com, all public relations professionals can experience the convenience of searching for a job on a website that puts the needs of job seekers first. By continuously monitoring the hiring needs of premium employers, public relations agencies, and government bodies in the United States, PRCrossing offers an incredible collection of active public relations jobs. The site does not charge employers to post their jobs, and it aggressively contacts and looks for thousands of employers each day in order to learn about new public relations positions.

Developed with the sole goal of aiding job seekers in their professional pursuits, the site is a one-stop shop for PR professionals. With PRCrossing's staff of hundreds of highly experienced researchers extensively monitoring the hiring needs of more than 250,000 employers across the country, countless new jobs are added to the site every day. And since the jobs listed on the site are specific to the public relations industry, job seekers can enjoy faster, more targeted job-search experiences.

PRCrossing's homepage always lists the number of jobs the site has posted in the last week along with a running total of job listings. The site's team works tirelessly to ensure that only the most current jobs are posted on the site every day. This week, PRCrossing has more than 2,500 public relations job openings on its site.

In addition to providing an extensive range of job listings including exclusive notices not posted on other employment sites, PRCrossing features a variety of articles that tap into the PR industry's key players, companies, and stories.

This week, PRCrossing's "PR Pointers" section takes a closer look at the biggest myths faced by public relations professionals, which ultimately prevent them from effectively utilizing the media. Also, in this week's "Public Relations Star" article, readers can learn some important public relations lessons from the assistant director of public relations for the Wakeman Agency, Liane Worthington.

This groundbreaking website is affiliated with EmploymentCrossing (www.employmentcrossing.com), the main hub for a growing family of industry-specific job-search sites that launched on April 9, 2007. Currently, job seekers can visit EmploymentCrossing to sign up for PRCrossing's services.

The development of the Crossing employment sites has been inspired by the success of LawCrossing (www.lawcrossing.com), which features the largest collection of active legal jobs in the world, including more than 10,000 positions at top law firms, corporations, public interest organizations, and government offices throughout the U.S.
