August 2, 2007

Pasadena, CA—By offering one of the largest collections of tech job openings in the nation, InformationTechnologyCrossing has made the tedious job-search process very simple. The site exists for both seasoned professionals as well as newcomers looking to start tech careers. The site has something for every tech professional.

With InformationTechnologyCrossing's staff of hundreds of highly experienced researchers extensively monitoring the hiring needs of more than 250,000 employers across the country, countless new jobs are added to the site every day. And since the jobs listed on the site are specific to the tech industry, job seekers can enjoy faster, more targeted job-search experiences.

InformationTechnologyCrossing's homepage always lists the number of jobs that the site posts each week along with a running total of job listings. The team works tirelessly to ensure that only the most current jobs are posted to the site every day. This week, InformationTechnologyCrossing added more than 3,200 new tech job openings.

In addition to providing an extensive range of job listings including exclusive notices not posted to other employment sites, InformationTechnologyCrossing features a variety of articles that tap into the tech industry's key players, companies, and stories.

This week, InformationTechnologyCrossing's featured articles section takes a closer look at the IT industry, where the rate of change of latest developments and research is extremely high, making constant relearning a necessity. Visitors to the site can also get a deeper understanding of electronic performance support, its application to modern learning, and its viability as an alternative tool in learning and performance-building strategies in this week's other featured article.

This exciting website is affiliated with EmploymentCrossing (www.employmentcrossing.com), the main hub for a growing family of industry-specific job-search sites that launched on April 9, 2007. Currently, job seekers can visit EmploymentCrossing to sign up for InformationTechnologyCrossing's services.

THE LARGEST COLLECTION OF TECH JOBS ON EARTH

The development of the Crossing employment sites was inspired by the success of LawCrossing (www.lawcrossing.com), which features the largest collection of active legal jobs in the world including more than 10,000 positions at top law firms, corporations, public-interest organizations, and government offices throughout the U.S. Since its launch in July 2003, LawCrossing has become the world's largest legal-career-placement website. The site is another brainchild of EmploymentCrossing founder A. Harrison Barnes, who also founded the hugely successful parent company of the Crossing employment sites, EmploymentScape, in 2000.
