EmploymentCrossing Launches WorkatHomeCrossing, a New Site That Seeks to Gather and Consolidate Every Work-at-Home Job Opening

May 31, 2008

WorkatHomeCrossing is an innovative job-consolidation website specifically designed for those who are interested in minting money from home. By consolidating every work-at-home job from every job website, WorkatHomeCrossing seeks to provide job seekers with every work-at-home job in one place.

Pasadena, CA — In May 2004, about 20.7 million persons were reported to be working at home at least once per week. WorkatHomeCrossing (www.workathomecrossing.com) seeks to consolidate every work-at-home job posting available online. WorkatHomeCrossing offers all types of jobs which can be done from home, and offers other advancement opportunities, too.

The likelihood of working at home is said to increase with educational attainment. According to the US Bureau of Labor Statistics, employees of at least 25 years of age with a bachelor's degree or beyond were six times more likely to work at home than those without a high school diploma. Work-at-home jobs like copy editor, desktop publisher, virtual administrative assistant, data entry clerk, market research analyst, and many more are in vogue today.

"In the current job market, it is not hard to get a work-at-home job, but most of the ones being advertised are scams," says A. Harrison Barnes, founder and CEO of WorkatHomeCrossing. "Jobs which are posted are mostly not genuine and end up wasting one's valuable time and money."

Despite the looming recession, there will always be a need for workers who are eager to earn and do not mind putting in extra effort. But the source of the job is important so that one does not get cheated in the long run. Work-at-home jobs span many industries and are often integral to the profits of many businesses. WorkatHomeCrossing aims to provide the most genuine work-at-home job openings of any job board in the nation.

According to Barnes, the most popular searches on the site thus far have been:

- work at home jobs
